Discipleship? What is it?

John Travis 119 (Fellowship Room)

Jesus articulated the conditions of discipleship for those who would follow him: "Whoever wants to be my disciple must deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me" (Mark 8:34). We all understand that Jesus is calling us to something more than just church attendance, but what are the specifics involved in being a disciple, and how is it expressed in our daily life? This class will reveal the essentials of discipleship and make it practical and understandable. Obeying Jesus involves both knowing and doing, and we become different people when we choose to follow him.

Practical Faith in the New Millennium

Tad Dowell, Jim Mainord 204 (Library)

This class for millennials will take a fresh look at faith and Scripture, examining what the Bible says about God and his interest in humanity. Foundational apologetics will be discussed along with questions having to do with truth, history and Biblical interpretation. The goal is to encourage God's community to more clearly know what they believe and why, holding faith with absolute personal integrity and intellectual honesty. The goal is to equip students to share the reason for their enduring hope in a world that questions and doubts.

Jewels from James (Women's Class)

Kelli Efurd, Celina Lopez220

Of all the books of the New Testament, James is considered to be the most practical. By elevating consistency and integrity of life, the inspired author emphasizes the real difference faith makes in the way we live every day. James describes the authentic and genuine Christian, the one who applies what they believe and puts it into practice. This class for women will reveal the real and true expression of faith. Faith is not just confessing and believing; it is living and being.

Finding God – Serving Others

College – Wayne Alsup222

College is a unique time of life of great opportunity and limitless possibility. Yet it can also be characterized by unpredictable change and bewildering uncertainty. This class will look at the distinct challenges facing college-age singles today, as they seek to negotiate the contests and obstacles of today's hectic culture. Students will guide the content of the class and will establish the agenda and define the curriculum. The goal is to point to Jesus and maximize each person's potential for service in the church and the world.

God at Work

30-ish – Various Teachers238

This class will examine the many ways that faith in God intersects the workplace. It will involve an interview based discussion exploring how different Northside members experience God in their daily job. Presentations will be made by scientists, lawyers, builders, teachers, law enforcement personnel, stay-at-home parents, and more. Each will reveal how followers of Jesus are regularly challenged, tested and encouraged in the course of their chosen vocations. Students will discover how faith makes a difference in both life and work.

The Church Advances: A Continuing Study of Acts

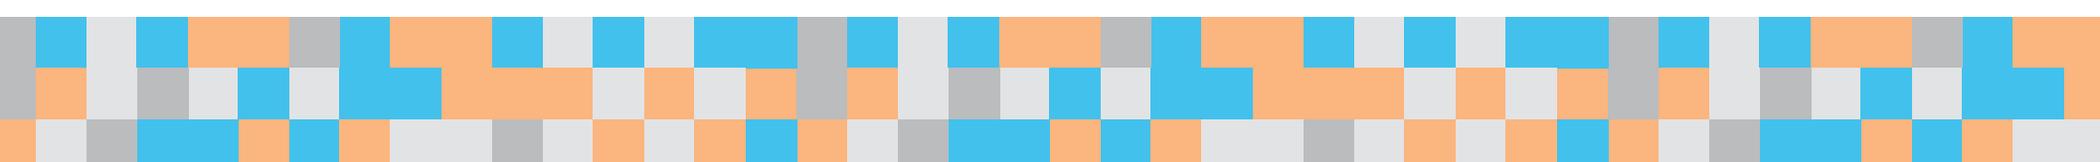

Allen Campbell, Maynard Leese, Jim Tittsworth, J.D. Williams.....239

During the second half of the first century the community of Jesus, which began as 120 people gathered in a small upper room, will grow beyond the borders of Palestine to reach much of the civilized world. Yet the extension of the church will not come easy, for it will encounter hostile opposition wherever it goes. Much of this expansion occurred because of the life and journeys of one man: Paul of Tarsus, the former opponent of Christianity who will become its greatest evangelist and advocate. It is true the story of one who in reality changed the world.

The Words of a Servant: The Message of II Peter

Bruce Utley240

During the second generation of its existence, the church of Jesus Christ faced unique challenges. There was confusion regarding the real nature of Jesus and the importance of his saving death. Unusual ideas about the material and spiritual realms led some to question the value of moral living and personal righteousness. Charismatic individuals with selfish agendas began exerting an unhealthy influence, and apostolic authority was openly defied. In the context of all these disputes Peter writes to draw his readers back to the original gospel. He reminds us today of eternal truths that do not change.

Jesus Reigns Supreme: A Study of Colossians

David Allen 119 (Fellowship Room)

Living in a pluralistic culture, we find ourselves inundated by a variety of values, beliefs and philosophies, all providing different perspectives on faith and life. In such a setting, holding to the truth of one system over another is often considered narrow-minded and inappropriate. When multiple messages are being offered there is always the tendency to dilute and blend. Paul's letter to Colosse reminds that, in every place and time, Jesus continues to reign supreme.

God and Us: Then and Now

Bruce Utley 238

God has always connected with humanity in mighty acts in history. The Old Testament in particular displays God's powerful intervention in the life of his people to disclose His loving character and reveal His majestic will. God's working through the ages exposes his amazing love for us today.
